Carey Crim

WRITER

Carey Crim is an award-winning playwright, screenwriter and graduate of Northwestern University's acclaimed theater arts program. Her play Never Not Once was the winner of the Jane Chambers award, a finalist for the O'Neill (National Playwrights Conference) and opened last February at Park Theatre to rave reviews. Carey adapted her play Wake for the screen and the feature film (starring Jo Koy) has won numerous film festival awards and was released October 8th by Gravitas Ventures. Morning After Grace ran to sold-out houses at The Purple Rose Theater starring Randolph Mantooth. It has continued to be produced every season at such luminary theaters as Asolo Repertory Theater, The Royal Manitoba Theater Centre, Shakespeare and Company, The Barter Theatre, Indiana Repertory Theatre, Florida Repertory Theatre, Gulfshore playhouse and many more. It was published by Theatrical Rights Worldwide. TRW also published her one-act play Distance Learning written for Laurie Metcalf. Paint Night was chosen for the 2020 Kilroys list, premiered at The Public Theatre in Maine and is slated for multiple productions next season. Her newest play The Islanders is currently in development and her comedy What Springs Forth will premiere at The Purple Rose in June. Carey is represented by Mark Orsini at Bret Adams and Brandy Rivers at Industry Entertainment where she is developing the television drama Blessed.
